Teaching Artists

Matthew Dickey (violin) earned a Master of Music from the Cincinnati College-Conservatory of Music in 2015 studying with Piotr Milewski. He has performed widely in the Midwest with orchestras such as The Indianapolis Chamber Orchestra, the Dayton Philharmonic, and the Queen City Opera Company; he was also on the faculty at the Toedtman School of Music and the Northern Kentucky School of Music. Mr. Dickey has also served as Concert Master of the Booth-Tarkington Theater in Indianapolis and as Assistant Concertmaster on tour with the New York Gilbert and Sullivan Players.

Bozena O'Brien (string department chair, violin, string ensembles), originally from Poland, received her training at Tanglewood, Boston University, and with Marylou Speaker Churchill of the Boston Symphony. She holds a Suzuki Book 1 Certificate, and has taught at St. Paul's School, Plymouth State University, Holderness School and Kimball Union Academy. She performs with the NH Music Festival, Vermont Symphony, Handel Society of Dartmouth and many other choral and orchestral ensembles as an active freelance violinist throughout New England.

Concord Community Music School's new SUMMER STRING CAMP is for students with training from 2 years and up, school grades 4-12. The focus is on playing in an ensemble which includes working on intonation, rhythm, dynamics, blending of sound, tone quality, and playing as one. Other classes will incorporate conducting pattern, sight reading and music theory with an occasional surprise class. The goal is to play some cool pieces, have fun, make friends and enjoy the beautiful sound produced by a group of musicians.
Faculty: Bozena O'Brien and Matt Dickey
